While preparing quotations/proposals for government contractors, I realized the potential for government contracts and started in a small way to supply solar equipment and gradually expanded to become a full-fledged contractor, taking up installation of the equipment also”. I found that Relationship Management and Cashflow management are critical factors for success of my business”. Answering a query on how his education at the ICFAI University helped in his business, he said “ While IT courses helped in setting up Internet Café, Courses like Economics and Financial accounting helped in preparing business plans and managing the business

Addressing the students on the occasion, Prof O R S Rao, Vice-Chancellor of the ICFAI University said, “ Entrepreneurship is an exciting career option, as it provides an excellent opportunity to build business as per one’s own interests. Besides contributing immensely to the economic growth, it gives the pride of creating employment to others”. “ We are proud that a number of our alumni became successful entrepreneurs by setting up business in areas like education, financial services, IT services, CAD Consulting, Construction etc.

Prof Rao said, In order to enable more students to take up entrepreneurship, our university has started an initiative of interactive sessions of sharing entrepreneurial journeys of our alumni .
