An Open Letter to Dr.Kalam After Four years of his sudden demise

Dear Missile man of India they have stopped making people like you.

Life is unexpected, and have hits us when we realize that our loved ones are gone. It is hard to accept, and no matter what, we have to live with it. The same happened, and the nation came to a standstill when it is announced that you have left all of us suddenly.

The news flashed, and people went numb, as a human mind it was hard for all of us to accept the despair. People might why? Well, for me your life itself was a lesson that every teenager needs to know in his/her life. You rose from the ashes and all darkness around you only to make your nation shine. You didn't give, but you were a hope to millions of people in this world. I Miss YOU DR.KALAM, and I am sure millions of people in this world also do.

You pioneered the nation towards the glorious oath of development, and the list of your remarkable contributions is endless. A man with seven honorary doctorates and a Padma Bhushan and Padma Vibhushan Awardee; you single-handedly became the torchbearer of a bright India. I still remember when they announced that your death anniversary will be named as the Youth Renaissance Day because you always encourage the youth for the betterment of the nation and motivated them.

Your words became your most powerful weapon.

They certainly made me your fan and if by any means, I had chance to see your or god forbid, meet you; I would want to tell you that you have motivated people enough by just saying things that mattered.

To say that we miss you will just be an understatement

You were the light that guided us in the darkness, you were the source of knowledge, inspiration and many more things to all of us. India is proud to have got the privilege of being your birth place. You are physically gone but you will always stay in our hearts. I still remember that you had once:

"When I am dead, do not declare a holiday. Instead, work a day extra".

Nothing else but this speaks volumes of how dedicated and devoted you were towards your work. It was an ironic thing to experience that you breathed your last while doing what you loved i.e. addressing the people of the nation.
